VERBAL DESCRIPTION:

This modelled censer fragment is made of a tan-orange rough jicaro type paste. The shape is ambiguous, though if oriented like the drawing it looks like the lower jaw, chin, and neck of an animal. The teeth are .7cm wide and 1.3cm tall. There are two sets of two present. There is a ^{circular} scar (from a fang?) 3.3cm in diameter between the couples. The teeth are separated by incision. The chin is round at the tip & covered with a bright orange paint. The neck flows smoothly from the chin. There is no fire clouding or burning on the fragment. The fragment feels very rough & has many brush strokes which are smoothed.
